TRETIMONY OF CORCORAN, THE MAN WHO IRONED WALKER.

Ma Made a Wooden Gag Because the Bay onet Was Cutting Walker's Mouth-Ingersoil's Threats and Expressions, From the testimony of the seamen and marines of the Enterprise that was given yesterda before Rear Admiral Kimberly and his two associates in the court of inquiry which is investigating Capt. Howman H. McCalin's conduct as commander of the Enterprise, it was brought out that Executive Officer Ingersoll, whose case is to be investigated separately by the Court, threatened the men on several occasions with belaving pins and used harsh language to his inferiors. The particulars in each case were not fully brought out, as Judge Advocate Garst told the witnesses to reserve them until later, but in spite of this there was a great deal said. A number of seamen yesterday did not hesitate to tell what their treatment had been Capt. McCalla, although their commander sat barely ten feet away, and didn't look a bit pleased. When the court convened at 10 o'clock the Judge Advocate brought in four men-Armorer Kennedy, Sergant Corwaidman. They were members of the craw who were not present last Tuesday when Admiral Kimberly, on the Enterprise, asked all those who had complaints against their commander to step out of the ranks. Every one of the four shook his head yesterday when the Admiral asked if they had any personal complaints to make. After several of the witnesses of last week had corrected the mistakes they found in the transcript of their testimony Corcoran was put on the stand. Coreoran, who is now a Sorgeant of marines on board the Wabash, in the Charlestown Navy Yard, was master-at-arms on board the Enterprise during the greater part of her eruise. His story of the striking of Fireman Walker agreed substantially with that of the other witnesses. Corcoran said he was ironing Walker at Lieut. Mulligan's orders, when Capt. McCalla appeared and struck Walker. after ordering him to stop his abuse. After the Captain had thrown the salt water over the prisoner the witness had him put on dry clothes and again put irons on him. He made a wooden gag for Walker's mouth, as Walker complained that the bayonet was cutting him. Corcoran remained on deck the rest of the night, and Walker kept talking to himself all night in such a way that the witness thought he was crazy. He had fits several times, and was finally taken to the siek bay.

Corcoran told of another case of ironing at Gibraltar, where Fireman Fitzgerald was abusive, and said the "shin's name was Murphy." He was ironed, and as he insisted on coming out from under the forecastle the Master-at-Arms was ordered to shackle him with another pair of irons to a ring buit. The wincess said it was the usual custom not to release men who were ironed at the various posts until the vessel put out to see. At Oran two men whom it was the usual custom not to release men who were ironed at the various posts until the vessel put out to sea. At Oran two men whom the Master-at-Arms had hard work getting aboard were shackled together and amade last to a ring bolt and kept there for two or three days until the ship salled.

When the vessel got to Leith Corcoran got orders to iron again the ship jumpers who had been caught at Siettin. The men were laid out on the deck, hand chalned to liand and foot to foet, until theyimade quite a string. At Stettin the same men had been put into irons every night. On one occasion Corcoran found Ross, one of the seamen, with his stratingate cut into ribbons. Ross remarked that he'd be damned if he would stay in a stratigacket in the American navy." When the ship was at Fouthampton Corcoran was sent ashore to bring Walker on beard in irons. Walker fought, and Corcoran threw him down. Stone and Davis, two of the midshipmen, who happened to be on the wharf, ordered the froms to be faten of, whereupen Walker and went back to he ship without the slightest resistance. Lieut, Mulligan ordered Walker into irons as scon as he got aboard, and Walker began to fight desperately for his liberty again. The master-at-arms threw him down, and Lieut, Mulligan picked up a swab which was used for cleaning the decks, and held it over Walker's mouth long enough to stop his cries. At another time the witness heard, Lieut, Ingersell say to Seaman Nellithat." he was going to have his damned head which was used for cleaning the decks, and held it over Walker's mouth long enough to stop his cries. At another time the witness heard Lieut. Ingersoll say to Seaman Neili that "he was going to have his damned head knocked off." He took a belaying pin from the rail to enforce his threat, but changed his mind. At St. Petersburg, Serg-ant Corcoran said, two men. Norris and Leahy, who had been left benind at Cronstadt, reported to the ship. They were taken to the mast, where Lieut. Ingersoll said to them:

"What did you come back for, you ————?"

"You can't cail me a ———, "replied one of them.

"If you don't go forward I'll knock your damned brains out," cried lieut. Ingersoll, brandishing a belaying pin about their heads. Another significant bit of testimony was given by Corcoan regarding his reports of punishments while on the ship. He filled the blank space for "remarks" in one instance with a note saying that the prisoner had been confined in a straignacket, He was ordered to change the report to read simply that the man had been put in the sentry's charge for safe keeping. Safe keeping.
Coresran brought the boy Meyer to the mast and was present when Commander McCalla threatened the boy with his sword. He heard the Captain say, with his sword close to the boy's lace:
You smile at me, you insolent hound!
Damn you, I've a good mind to kill you in your tracks and make an example of you.

Damn you, I've a good mind to kill you in your tracks and make an example of you."

The court allowed Lawyer Menzles to postpone Corroran's cross-examination until to-day to give the lawyer an opportunity of ex-day to give the lawyer an opportunity of examining the records.

Armorer Daniel Kennedy, a typical old salt, with white moustache and hair, was then put on the stand. Several witnesses have testified that the commander swore at Kennedy for accidentally discharging a revolver, but the presence of Capt. McCalla himself, possibly, was too much for Kennedy, and all he could remember was that the commander had "soolded" him. He thought be ought to have got more punishment.

George D. Ross testified to having been kept in a straitjacket as a punishment for being drunk.

George D. Ross testified to having been kept in a straitjacket as a punishment for being drunk.

Otto Sundislad, who said he was "Jack of the Dust" aboard the Enterprise, told how it felt to be kept for six or seven nights in succession in a straitjacket, with his feet ironed besides. In the daytime his nunishment was varied by his being put in "couble Irons instead. This happened at Christiania. At Cronstadt Sundiblad had live days in the "brig" on bread and water, followed by two months of extra duty. On cross-examination Sundislad acknowledged that at Christiania he was swimming asnore when he was caucht and put into a straitjacket.

"The next morning you had no desire to leave the ship," asked Mr. Menzles.

"I would have tried it again if I could have had the chance," was the answer, which seemed to tackie Mr. Menzles.

P. E. Wigan, one of the ship's apprentices. Was so overcome when he came to the stand by the array of gold bands and brass buttons that he could hardly speak above a whisper. He numbed the ship at Rouen, he said, and was chained up with ten or twelve others in consequence. Their hammocks lay alongside them, but they were useless, as it was impossible for the men, ironed as they were, to unlish them. Whenever one man of the lot wanted to move they all had to move together. This was kept up for eight or nine days, Wigan said, day and hight. Buring the day the men had to rub bright work with their irons on. At the afternoon session Joseph H. Choale, who is one of the causel for McCalla, arpeared, but did not take part in the cross-examinations.

C. M. Milsen, a white-haired Swede, was the first winness in the afternoon. When the Enterprise was at Tamatay, Nilson said, he went ashore as one of the crow of the Captain's gig. It was raining hard and he, with two or three others, got under shelter. He was a little late in getting back to the gig. and ran down to the shore just as the boat was shoving off. For this he was reported and was put linto the "brig" with couble from s

"Why didn't you go aboard the next day?"

asked Mr. Menzies.
"It hought I might just as well be killed for a slipep as a lamb. I would have got the same punishment I I had gone aboard the same punishment I I had gone aboard the same punishment I I had gone aboard the same hour."

A. C. Nied, another seaman, told how he got three months' extra duty after being ironed for five days.
"You were brought aboard drunk and dirty, weren't you?" asked Mr. Menzies.
"I didn't get drunk because I didn't have money enough, and I wasn't dirty because I swam to the ship."

Gustav Gustavesen was caught at Stettin for jumping ship, and he related how his arms ware fromed behind his back as a punishment. It was his first offence, but he received harsher treatment than any of the other men. He was fromed again when the vessel got to Leith, and kept under scaling's charge for nearly a month, the time that the vessel lay there. Gustavesco was possible that some of the men were treated with greater lenity than others who committed lighter offences. On the crossexanication Lawyer Menzies put a question or two at the sungestion of his client.

"Didn't the commander grant the men in your department three days leave on one occasion for good conduct?"

"We never got it from the Captain. He had orders from the Admiral to give lito us," asid the witness stubbornly. "If Capt. McCalla had his own way we never would have had the leave, and that's what the whole ship's crew thinks."

thinks."

Samuel Westburg, seaman's apprentice, said he wanted to withdraw the complaint he had made against one of the officers, as he understood that the officer had been punished. Westburg was ironed at liouen and Fordeaux. The day's hearing was closed with the testimony of Otto klein, a private in the marine corps, who told of his own experience in irons at Rouen for being asleep on duty.

HARD NAMES FOR COL. BLISS.

The Senate Committee on General Laws Regards Bis Conduct as Ungentlemanly. In the absence of Chairman Erwin, Senator Vedder presided vesterday morning at the session of the Senate Committee on General Laws, which has been conducting a series of investigations at the Hotel Metropole as to the dangers of electricity.
"Is Harold E. Brown here?" asked Senator

Vedder, and, there being no response, he added: "I wish to make a statement for the benefit of the public, which is represented here by the press." He then read from a published interview with Col. George Bliss, in which Col. Bliss said he was not bothered at all because the committee had ordered him not to appear at any more of their meetings. "Fortunately, perhaps," Col. Bliss added, in the interview, "I have an important engagement for to-morrow (Monday) morning, which will undoubtedly prevent me from yielding to temptation in going to the meeting." He also said that be had deliberately "sassed" the committee, and considered the fact that they had decided to call expert Brown a complete victory for him-self. Then Senator Vedder went on to say: "I desire to state as acting Chairman that no member of this committee, except perhaps Senator Erwin, knew that Col. Bliss wished to have Mr. Brown examined until 6 o'clock on Senator Erwin, knew that Col. Bliss wished to have Mr. Brown examined until 6 o'clock on Saturday evening. The letter that Col. Bliss had addressed to Senator Erwin with reference to the matter had remained sealed until that hour. The committee as a committee care nothing for the statement of Col. Bliss to the public through the sapers. This investigation originated in the Senatorial branch of the Legislature, and is for the single purpose of gathering information from electrical experts for the benefit of that body. The only mistake of Col. Bliss was that he thought this was a lawsuit and not an investigation, and that therefore there were sides to it. Col. Bliss's action had no weight with the committee in holding this meeting to-day; we had previously intended to meet.

"I thind no weight in inducing us to hear Mr. Brown, but it did have the effect of our determining to hear Mr. Brown without the presence of Col. Bliss. A letter was sent to Mr. Brown at his residence on Saturday night asking him to appear to-day at 11 oclock. We will wait for him until 12 o'clock, and then if he is not here we will adjourn. The action of Col. Blise we regard as unjustifiable, ungentlemanly, uncalled for, and, under the circumstances, perfectly outrageous. As the committee has not the power to commit for contempt, we take the course we have taken in order to protect ourselves from further insult. I will also save that Senator Erwin has been called away by a business engagement, and that his absence is no tway due to this affair with Col. Bliss."

Ex-Commissioner Daniel L. Gibbens of the Board of Electrical Control asked, in the interest of those whom he represented, that a public hearing be given on the bill which the committee would irame on the subject of electricity. Senator Vedder said the committee would take that matter under consideration.

At 12 o'clock Senator Vedder declared the chair.

COLLISION ON THE BOUND

The Schooner Nellie Eaton Run Into by an

Unknown Vessel, 9 BRIDGEPORT, March 17 .- Capt. Joe Green of the steamer Isis at daylight this morning discovered a schooner in distress at the mouth of Bridgeport harbor. The wind was blowing a gale from the west and the schooner was drifting rapidly toward the breakwater. On reaching the disabled vessel Capt, Green discovered that the schooner had been run into by some other vessel. He sent a hawser aboard and brought her into the harbor. The schooner proved to be the Nellie Eaton, Capt, Morrison, of Calais, Me., from Providence for New York, with empty oil barrels.

Capt. Morrison said that about midnight; when off Penfield Reel, on the wind, heading about west, he saw a schooner coming direct ly for him, head on, with a free wind. Capt, Morrison insists that his lights were burning When he saw that a collision was inevitable he put his holm sport to prevent as much as possible damage to his boat. The stranger did not put his holm aport to prevent as much as possible damage to his boat. The stranger did not alter herfcourse, but came on under full headway, striking the Eaton on her port side, carrying away her fore and main rigging, tearing her foresail and mainsail, and doing other damage. The stranger's anchor fouled with the Eaton, and snapping in two, one-half of it dropped on the deck of the Eaton.

The stranger after passing the Eaton, lowered a boat in response to Capt. Morrison's call, as though to ascertain what damage was done to the Eaton, but, changing their minds, the men rowed back to their vessel, which proceeded on its way easiward. The vessel was deep loaded, supposed to be with coal. The Eaton started for Bridgeport harbor, but under jib sions was unable to reach it.

Capt. Morrison to-day entered a protest in the usual way, and telegraphed to New London and New Haven to ascertain if any vessel answering his description had arrived. He has not yet received a renly. The Eaton will remain here until repairs are made.

PORT JEFFERRON, March 17.—The schooner Allen Gurney of Cold Spring, N. Y., which ran into the schooner Nellie Eaton in the Sound on Sunday night, was towed in here tonight by the steamer Nonowantue. After the collision the Gurney anchored a mile south of Stratford Shoals. She relied heavily to-day, Her bowsprit and head gear are all gone. She will repair here. Capt Morrison of the Nellie Eaton is here to-night with a claim for damages against the Gurney.

ELMIRA ASSESSORS CENSURED.

They Failed to Assess Personal Property

Invested in Certain Banks. ELMIRA, March 17 .- It having been assert ed by the local press that thirty assessors had neglected their duty in falling to assess the personal property invested as capital in the Chemung Canal and Farmers' and Mechanics' Banks of this city, two private banking concerns, the Assessors-W. A. Kingsbury, P. J. Lee, and Jacob Kolb-were summoned before the Grand Jury last week and an investigation made. In their report submitted to the Court to-day they give as the result of their investigation that no personal property is assessed to any person as capital invested in either of the above-mentioned banks. The report says that the evidence of Lewis M. Smith and Henry Bacon of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank shows that the assessors have made no effort to ascertain the amount of capital invested in said bank and subject to taxation. The jury were unable to secure the attendance of important witnesses with reference to the Chemung Canal Bank on account of their absence from the city, and have no positive proof that no such effort was made with reference to that bank. The report says:

"From the facts elicited, the jury is of the opinion that the said Assessors have grossly neglected to perform the duties incumbent upon them, and many thousands of dollars of personal property invested as capital in the said banks has carelessly, if not wilfully, been allowed to escape taxation, and the said Assessors are deserving of public censure for such conduct in office." CHICAGO, March 17 .- Lieut. F. M. Steele. whose trial by court martial will begin in this city to-morrow, arrived here from Fort Snelling to-day. The allegations are that he ordered Private Del P. Wild to assist him in some work about Steele's quarters; that Wild refused to obey the order, asserting that it was not within the line of his duty; that Steele knocked him the line of his duty; that Steele knocked him down and then preferred charges of insubor-dination against him, on which he was court martialled and sentenced to one year's im-prisonment at hard labor. The matter was taken up in the newspapers, with the result that President Harrison ordered Wild's release and Steele's trial by court martial.

Ex-Congressman John R. Weber, the new Federal Commissioner of Immigration, started ut resterday to get a lay of the land, and, with Collector Erhardt and Surveyor Lyon, visited Bedlow's Island. It was simply a tour of investigation, and nothing definite will be done until after the visit of the Congress committee late in the week.

After their return Mr. Weber called at Castle

Garden to view the work done by the State Board. He saw a load of immigrants come in. and had a chat with Secretary Jackson and Commissioners Stephenson and Ridgway. Afterward Mr. Weber said he had received no instructions to have Bedlow's Island or any other place in readiness for receiving immigrants by April 18, when his duties will begin, His present mission is to inform himself, and he expects to be joined to-day by Gen. O'Beirne, his deputy. Mr. Weber said that liedlow's Island seemed to be admirably adapted for the purposes of a landing, and gave the impression that he will recommend the site to the Government.

Mr. Weber receives $6,000 a year and Gen. O'Beirne is his chief deputy. There will be other deputies appointed, and when the new bureau is in full operation they will report directly to the Secretary of the Treasury. thing done will be the withdrawal of the regiment of United States regulars from the island. They are quartered there in a threestory building with 7,500 square feet of room, that Bedlow's Island will be selected.

One of the indignant inspectors said yesterday.
The Commissioner has violated United which says that the Commissioners of Emigration are requested to ald the Collector and immigrant inspectors appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury in examining immigrants in order to discover these forbidden by law to

Pupils of the Old Colored School No. 1 Cel

The John Peterson Association, formerly the "Association of Scholars of the Old Ninth Class," had an annual dinner at 241 Thirty-ninth street. The association under its old name existed for many years, and included the survivors of the 62 members of the Ninth class of "Colored School No. 1." Two years ago it was enlarged to take in all surviving graduates of the school.

The school was started about 1825 in Aller street, and had only seven pupils. It was founded by the Manumission Society, the Quaker anti-slavery organization. In 1835 it was opened as a regular school in a building in Mulberry street, near Grand.

The principal was the Rev. John Peterson who had obtained his start in education in the original class of seven members. He remained in charge of the school for forty years until 1874, by which time its work was practically completed. It suspended a short time after he left it. Before the war it was a famous instileit it. Before the war it was a famous institution, having both male and female departments and sometimes as many as 500 pupils on its rolls. Mr. Peterson's labors in behalf of theschool, and of the colored race generally, made him renowned throughout the country, lie died about six years ago and the surviving graduates of his school have adopted the plan of honoring his memory by a dinner on the anniversary of his birthday.

About forty of the sixty members of the association were present last night. Wm. E.
Gross, President of the association, sat at the head of the table, thuries H. Lansing, Jr., was toastmaster and the speeches included an address of welcome by the President, "The

COL. ROGERS'S CHUBADE.

Four of His Wards Discharged and Eight to be Examined by Juries, The Ward's Island people yesterday produced eight of the twelve men called for by Col. Rogers's writs of habeas corpus. They had discharged the other four, they said, as cured, Col. Rogers said he would demand proof of the discharge.

Four of the eight were taken to the Supreme Court and four to the Court of Common Pleas, At the door of the Supreme Court Chambers

Col. Rogers shook hands with the men. The assistant corporation counsel asked Judge Andrews to send the four men before jury, for a determination as to their mental condition. The motion was granted, two cases going before Judge Patterson on Monday next, and two before Judge O'Brien on Friday. These men are John Jones, C. T. Wilson, T. A. Curtis, and J. C. Weingreich.

Col, Rogers declared that two of the men were not in the same condition as when he last saw them, and broadly insinuated that they had been drugged. He wanted them placed in the custody of a keeper and silowed to go to his apartments, where, he said, they would have competent medical attendance, good food, and comfortable beds. None of these, he said, could be obtained at the asylum. Justice Andrews said there would have to be a judicial determination before any change in the present condition of affairs was made. He directed that the Colonel and Lawyer Marston have an opportunity to converse with the men outside of the hearing of their keepers.

Alderman Welss, William Williams, Joseph McLaughlin, and D. J. Donovan, who were called for in the writs of the Court of Common Pleas, were remanded until Wednesday. The men who the asylum authorities allege have been discharged are H. A. Enright, Frank Yobb, C. Matthews, and Gustav Hillman. going before Judge Patterson on Monday next,

Lawyer Haire Excherated.

Lawyer R. J. Haire of 23 Chambers street was recently indicted by the Grand Jury for receiving stolen goods. Mrs. Carrie Potter, who had been a prisoner in the Tombs, charged him with receiving a pair of $700 diamond earrings, which she had lost while in the Tombs, from a female client. Lawyer Haire turned the earrings over to Mrs. Potter. saying that he did not wish to have anything to do with them, as he did not believe that his client could have come honestly by them. Mrs. Potter then declared that bits of glass had been substituted for her diamonds. The in-dictment was dismissed yesterday by Judge Martins, District Attorney Fellows recom-mending the dismissal on the ground that no orimo had been committed.

Br. Depew Going to Florida. Dr. Chauncey Mitchell Depew is rapidly convalencing, and on Wednesday he will start for St. Augustine, Florida. WESTBORO, Mass., March 17.-In view of he charge of murder which is hanging over Punishment," which he wrote thirty-two years Punishment," which he wrete thirty-two years ago while he was an inmate of the Westboro Reform School, will be read with interest. This is what he wrote-

"MR. PRESIDENT: The question for debate is this: Shall capital punishment be abolished? I don't know whether it ought to be or not. I don't know whether it ought to be or not. I think if it ought to be abolished the State would have it abolished. If they did not case a law that all morderers should be hung, persons would be afraid of their lives. They would be afraid to sleep in their own houses. I think in some cases it would be well to send them to State prison for life, and then they would have a chance to reflect on their past life, and may be led to ask for forgivenness of him who has power to forgive them. I have no doubt there is many a man who has violated the laws of the State, and ere he is brought before the gallows repented of his sins. How must a man feel when he is in this situation! Would ne not give all the world if he could be pardoned? If they were sent to State prison they might try to get free. I think there would be a great many more murders if we did not have this law of capital punishment." f capital punishment.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 17 .- Never in the history of wheat-raising in Illinois has the prospect for a good crop changed more materially than within the past ten days. Up to March 5 the winter had been mild, and the wheat plant was never in a more healthy and apparently prosperous condition. The plant had been advanced by the favorable weather. and was just ready for a vigorous start on a spring growth. The plant was full of health; sap, which had raised to such an extent that is was very susceptible to the hard frost when is

It is a swamp wheat, and does not seem to have stood the frost nearly so well as the old golden chaff or Mediterranean.
